This is a follow up of the events already organized in Brussels in 2015 and the official launch of the new “branch” of our association in Brussels. At this occasion we would like to honour the work of the volunteers working in the medical sector in Greece.

Some of the volunteer health professionals working in Greece will be attending the evening to give us an update on their efforts over the past 5 years to build up a network of social clinics across the country, to provide essential free medical treatment for those in need and, when necessary, assist the public health system.

The aim of our fundraising evening on 14 June is also to have a clearer idea of how to work together with you and other initiatives, you might be involved with, to ensure that we help to meet the most pressing needs in the Greek health sector. The work of the volunteer doctors, nurses and pharmacists in Greece, as well as the hundreds civil society volunteers, is saving lives and, as you will hear, there are plenty of opportunities for us in Brussels to support our colleagues in Greece in practical ways.
